Freshmen Get Their Orders

The sophomore class of Princeton College was up late Friday night. Divided into parties, each armed with a pot of paste and a brush, they started out to put up their annual proclamation to the freshman class.

Every available place in the town was crowded this morning with big green posters, two and a half feet by three and a half feet in size, bearing across the top in big green letters, "Fresh '93."

The freshmen discovered what was going on and organized scouting parties to follow up the saps, and wherever possible to tear down the posters.

This is the text of the proclamation:— Attention, ye mongrel herd of freshmen!

Whereas by the leucency of the examination committee a large and motley aggregation of m-m-m-m-darlings has been recruited from the nursery; and Whereas this sickening mass of effluvia, composed of the scourgings of the kindergarten and primary schools, has fallen like a blight upon our college; and Whereas by reason of sundry and diverse infantile attempts at a so called cheer it has come to our knowledge that this miscellaneous aggregation of greenness and asininity has been formed into the freshman class; and Whereas realizing that in their untutored mental condition many will be the temptations which will assail their path, we, the all victorious class of '92, deem it necessary for their guidance in the paths of rectitude and virtue to issue the following:

PROCLAMATION.

Whereas your soft muscles and flabby bones must not be overtaxed. We forbid the carrying of anything which could, even by courtesy, be called a cane, or anything even bearing the semblance thereof; and Whereas, your delicate and milk-nurtured stomachs must be treated with special care, we forbid any of you to indulge in the filthy and nauseating habit of chewing tobacco or of smoking pipes, either on the campus or in your rooms; and

Whereas your young, immature voices are not yet through changing, we forbid your uttering the inspired melody, "O d Nassau," or uttering a cheer; and Whereas your greenness and your chubby pink and white cheeks can have no connection with the sacred orange and black, we forbid the exhibition of it in any shape and form, either upon your loathsome frames or within your filthy dens.

Strict obedience to the following minor rules will be rigidly enforced:

1. Upon meeting a sophomore step into the gutter, remove your hat, speak only when spoken to, and remember above all to always use "sir" in your communications with members of the illustrious class of '92.

2. Shun the seductive pool room, with all its charms, and never visit Trenton, New York or Philadelphia for any purpose without full permission from some member of the glorious so, homore class.

3. Always be in your room, with lights out, at half-past 9 o'clock.

4. Never allow your smutty face to be seen grouped upon the campus, and never pollute the limpid waters of the inviting gymnasium.

WHIPPED BY WHITE CAPS.—The inhabitants of the village of Rush, Pa., are highly incensed over an assault committed a few days ago by alleged white caps on David Snyder, a respected citizen. The story of the affair as told by Mr. Snyder is as follows:—"It was about eight o'clock in the evening when I was standing in the road in front of the hotel, and four men, disguised, threw a rope around me and dragged me down to the bridge. On the bridge were three or four more men disguised. They joined the first party. I got loose from the rope and tried to defend myself for I thought they were going to kill me. They then threw me down and stamped on me. Then they took off part of my clothing and dragged me over a fence, breaking some of the boards, into a lot and tied me to a tree, saying they would kill me. Then they ordered ten stripes, which they gave me, and then they ordered fifteen more stripes, which they gave also. I begged them to kill me. They whipped me until I was insensible and they left me tied to a tree. Mr. Snyder is black and blue on most of the surface of his body, from his ankles to the top of his shoulder and on his legs are gasches cut in his flesh from two to ten inches long.
